

You are invited to the Georgia Knowledge Repository's Annual Meeting at GaCOMO

October 2nd from 10-11:50

Room Estes A

Augusta, Georgia

The keynote presentation will be given by Karen Calhoun, author of Exploring Digital Libraries: Foundations, Practice, Prospects (ALA, 2014).

Digital Scholarship is Here: What's Next for Digital Library Services?

Through the lens of a community-centered, life-cycle model of success factors, this presentation explores the distinguishing characteristics of thriving digital services that support scholars. More specifically, it evaluates repositories (subject- and institutionally-based) in the context of the value they produce or could produce for scholarly research, communication and practice. Along the way it suggests possibilities for repository and digital services managers to overcome common barriers and align services with scholars' changing practices for sharing new work, collaborating with others, and achieving professional recognition.

After the presentation, there will be plenty of time for discussion .

For more information about the meeting, please contact Jackie Radebaugh at 706-507-8693 or by e-mail: radebaugh_jacqueline@columbusstate.edu

For more information about the Georgia Knowledge Repository, please see: www.gaknowledge.org